

We are students from Vantaa ammattiopisto varia. The school with the Erasmus program gave us the opportunity to experience different things. So we traveled to Spain-Bilbao. Where we learned how they use their use their local ingredients to prepare their traditional dishes. It's a very big place with different departments(ie: the cold room where the students work with only fish and meat, the vegetables department, dessert etc). Their menu are all traditional compared to varia where we learn both traditional and international dishes. On our last day we also took their ingredients to prepared something for them and the chefs really enjoyed it. We were logged at the Gambara hostel where tourist mostly logged because it's cheaper and in a good area where metro and buse station are just a walking distance. It was a nice experience.
